operating local Greenwich landmark from the 18th century that is now Pecksland Road. This residence, which is part of the Greenwich Historical Society, is represented by Southport agent Amanda Heyn for $2,595,000.

Located on two acres of land on highly sought-after Pecksland Road, the home was constructed for the farm in 1762. Now fully updated, the five-bedroom, five-bath transformed residence offers a distinct antique style paired with the sophistication of modern living. A spa-like master bathroom, central air conditioning, an updated kitchen and a full house generator are just some of the modern additions. Other features include French doors, walk-in closets, three fireplaces, granite countertops and hardwood flooring throughout.

Amenities continue on the home's expansive private grounds, which feature a heated pool, small barn, old-fashioned well and babbling brook.

"This home epitomizes the charming atmosphere and simple beauties of its past," said Heyn. "Just a short drive from downtown Greenwich, the property resides on its own private oasis. It is a truly exceptional home and a rare, historic opportunity that is not to be missed."
