

Antique Farm House For Sale In Greenwich For $2.6M

by Daily Voice Real Estate 4 hours ago

GREENWICH, Conn. – William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty recently announced the firm has listed an antique farm house that formerly served as the creamery for Peck's Farm, an operating local Greenwich landmark from the 18th century.

The residence, which is part of the Greenwich Historical Society, is represented by Southport agent Amanda Heyn for about $2.6 million. Located on 2 acres of land on Pecksland Road, the home was built for the farm in 1762. Now fully updated, the five-bedroom, five-bath transformed residence offers an antique-style paired with the sophistication of modern living, according to a press release. A spa-like master bathroom, central air conditioning, an updated kitchen and a full house generator are just some of the modern additions, according to a press release. Other features include French doors, walk-in closets, three fireplaces, granite countertops and hardwood flooring throughout, according to a press release.

The home's expansive priv

Get Breaking News In Your Inbox

Popular

- 1 Missing Daughter Has Been Found, Says Rosie O'Donnell
- 2 First Potential Hurricane Of 2015 Is Developing Off Atlantic Coast
- 3 Three Year-Old Stamford Girl Seriously Injured After Car Rolls Over Her
- 4 Former Norwalk Residents Among Three Killed In Taconic Parkway Crash
- 5 Harry Connick Jr.'s Daughter Charged In Underage Party In New Canaan