WESTPORT, Conn. — William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty recently announced the firm has listed a renovated Cape-style Colonial home on a private cul-de-sac in the residential neighborhood of Hunt Club.

The property is represented by Westport agents Jennifer Kass and Cyd Hamer, and offered at $1.549 million. The recently renovated home at 1 Ulbrick Lane boasts high-end touches and features that seamlessly highlight its original character and charm, according to a press release.

Originally constructed in 1954, the move-in-ready 4,500-square-foot home now contains all modern luxuries and amenities, boasting intricate millwork, an updated kitchen, refurbished bathrooms, freshly painted walls and more, according to a press release. The residence includes a total of six bedrooms and four and a half baths.

Outside, a brand-new extensive deck overlooks the home's private, lushly landscaped grounds, according to a press release. A walkout finished lower level with French doors opens to a flagstone patio and level yard, which offers room for a potential in-ground pool.

The Hunt Club community is named after the Fairfield County Hunt Club, a private equestrian facility that offers riding trails extending east into Greenfield Hill.
