William Pitt Sotheby's agent organizes Color-A-Thon fundraising race

William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty announced recently that Danielle Palmer, an agent from the firm's Stamford-Harbor Point brokerage, is helping to organize an upcoming fundraiser event to support enrichment for students of Stillmeadow Elementary School, where Palmer serves as co-president of the PTO.

Color-A-Thon, a community color run open to anyone who wishes to participate, will take place at Stamford's Cove Island Park at 9 a.m. April 16. Registration for the race begins at 8:30 a.m.

run-themed race, where runners are showered with colored powder at stations along the route, is part of the School-A-Thon program, which aims to provide schools with an exciting, interactive alternative to the traditional educational fundraiser.

The event is designed to maximize funds, with all donations directly supporting local educational services and enrichment.

Color-A-Thon is one of the most popular fundraising options available, allowing for community building, simple fundraising and an overall enjoyable day.

"I am thrilled to be a part of this worthy cause that supports the well-being and future of our community's children," said Palmer. "It is the Stillmeadow School's mission to have a colorful day full of raising money, having fun and meeting new people, and I encourage all to participate to help make our efforts a great success."
