Agent joins William Pitt Sotheby's as a manager in Stratford

Stratford – William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty announced recently that Nicole Borseley will now serve as the brokerage manager for the firm's Stratford brokerage. Borseley brings to her new role 14 years of residential and commercial real estate experience, ranging from sales and management to owning and operating her own real estate firm.

Borseley has gained expertise in all aspects of the real estate business including areas such as property management, development, real estate-owned asset management and short sales, working with home buyers, home builders and investors.

Over the course of her career she has achieved top producer status as a sales agent, earned the distinction of being named Fairfield County Weekly's Best Real Estate Agent for two years in a row, and founded and operated her own Stamford-based residential real estate firm, The Property Network. Most recently, Borseley managed Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage's Stamford office.

"Nicole brings a passion for real estate combined with a relentless focus on outstanding service and providing an extraordinary client experience," said

Paul Breunich, president and CEO of William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty. "Her deep knowledge of the business and impressive background as a manager, agent and broker/owner of her own firm will allow her to carry on our company's tradition of exceptional leadership. I am thrilled to welcome her to the team."

Borseley said she has always been committed to listening to every client's needs and helping them realize their dreams.

"My goal as a sales manager is to fully support each of my agents in doing the same," she said. "I am excited to add to my managerial approach by drawing upon the networking strength and marketing power of a globally renowned real estate brand."
