The company was selected from nearly 13,000 submissions from all over the world.

“We are constantly impressed by the extent of creativity showcased by our Webby Honorees,” said David-Michel Davies, executive director of The Webby Awards. “Your work continues to further the scope of innovation, setting the standard of excellence on the Internet.”

The recognition came after the company spent 18 months completely redesigning its website, launching in the summer of 2015. Stand-out features include property video clips on the home page, robust content on every listing page, full-bleed high-resolution photography, site customization according to the user’s location, the ability to custom tailor the site with personal preferences, and detailed community information and local knowledge such as accessibility to area schools and travel times to Grand Central Terminal.

“We set out to create a website that offers an unparalleled experience in the real estate industry. The Webbys recognition along with our other recent accolades is a wonderful acknowledgment of that mission,” said Vin Socci, Chief Operating Officer of William Pitt and Julia B. Fee Sotheby’s International Realty.
