

A dedicated Realtor

Local real estate agent Jonathan Hall knows Danbury like the back of his hand. He was not only born here, but he still resides in the city.

He became an agent when he sought a career where he could make a real difference in people's lives and use his skills; he's smart, organized, tech savvy, and has a passion for customer service and the ability to make a difference in people's lives. His knowledge of the area, ability to manage and guide real estate transactions, and ability to connect with clients were bonus qualities.

Today, as an agent for William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty, he conducts his business with a "whatever it takes" philosophy, whether that means meeting clients late at night to place an offer, meeting trades-professionals early in the morning, hand-delivering documentation or making multiple trips to city hall.

He has shown clients homes from Fairfield to Sherman, and as far east as Middlebury. However, much of his business is done in the immediate area of Danbury, New Fairfield and Bethel.

Most of his clients are first-time home buyers and sellers who often require much hand holding from the first consultation to the closing and beyond, Hall said, adding that he has also assisted clients relocating into the area as well as servicing properties for out of town owners.

He prides himself in added experience with high-quality photography and preparing homes for the market, and has received a number of accolades for his service including Monthly Top Producer Awards, Bronze Star Awards for annual sales performance based on closed units, Most Valuable Team Member and seven consec-

Business: William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty

Lives: Danbury

Office: Danbury

Expertise: First-time homebuyers, sellers and relocation services

Contact: (203) 417-0523, Jonathan.Hall@SothebysRealty.Com

utive years of Connecticut Magazine Five Star Real Estate Agent Award for customer service.

In his free time, the agent enjoys spending time outdoors either in on the water, in the woods, as well as music, movies and catching up with old friends. He graduated through the Danbury school system in 2002, followed by a bachelor's of arts degree at York College of Pennsylvania in 2006.