IF YOU'RE LOOKING TO BUY IN GREENWICH...

ONE OF THE MOST EXPANSIVE FOR-SALE ESTATES IN GREENWICH WAS designed by Paul Marchese, who served as an architect for the original World Trade Center destroyed on 9/11. For his family, Marchese built a traditional Georgian manor home, fronted by a gardened courtyard and a stone façade, and flanked by a portico. Constructed in 2000, the manse looks decidedly Old World throughout its nearly 15,000-square-foot interiors. There are 12-foot-high coffered ceilings, plaster crown moldings, arched doorways, intricately carved mantels and, in the library, walls of custom paneling. But there are also modern amenities, including a home theater, a wine cellar, a billiards room with a bar, and a mirrored gym with a steam shower and sauna. The six-bedroom home is offered by Leslie McElwreath of Sotheby's International Realty for $8,995,000.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING TO BUY IN LITCHFIELD COUNTY...

OUR FIRST BIG-DEAL LISTING IS IN BRIDGEWATER, AN ACTUAL CASTLE that's just hit the market for $4.5 million. Socked away on 18.14 wooded acres, it's the ultimate property for people who prefer privacy. While there's not a moat, fortress-like features include stone turrets and parapets, complete with the tooth-shaped merlons used to shield soldiers back in the day. But the 6,045-square-foot interiors are thoroughly modern, especially the main-bedroom suite, which is comprised of a turret-shaped sitting room, two balconies and a spa-like bath with a whirlpool tub. It's offered by Kellie Martone, of William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty.

Fit For A Queen This castle-like estate in Bridgewater comes complete with turrets and 18 private acres. Kellie Martone, of William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty in Danbury, lists the property for $4.5 million. 203-948-1034.

ICE, ICE BABY

A Stamford property offers a cool amenity you don't see every day—a professional indoor hockey rink, complete with a high-tech scoreboard, heated benches, two locker rooms, a viewing lounge and even a Zamboni. Oh, and there are two houses on the 13-acre property, with a total of six bedrooms, along with a swimming pool. Rita Kirby and Janet Jorgensen, both of William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty in New Canaan, share the $5,900,000 listing. 203-984-7665 and 203-856-1318.
