

This week: Homes with great views

1 ▲ Lahaina, Hawaii From the west shore of Maui, this two-bedroom home looks out on sunsets over the ocean and Molokai. The house has lava rock accents, stone tiling, an open kitchen and living area, and an indoor garden patio with vaulted glass ceiling surrounding a pool and spa landscaped with rocks, tropical plants, and waterfalls. The 0.33-acre lot features mature palms, shrubs, and lawns, a waterfront deck for whale watching, and a guest cottage. $5,945,000. Ben Willis, Island Sotheby's International Realty, (808) 298-3498

2 ► Big Sky, Mont. This five-bedroom home sits on 39 acres at the edge of Gallatin National Forest, with views of Spanish Peaks, Lone Mountain, and the Gallatin Range. The custom-built house is finished with reclaimed wood and stone and features a vaulted great room with floor-to-ceiling windows and two-sided fireplace, a chef's kitchen, and two master suites, each with fireplace and deck. The grounds include a backup generator and full security system, patio, pond, hot tub, and three-car garage with dog bath. $5,995,000. Mia Lennon, The Big Sky Real Estate Co., (406) 641-0051

3 ► Westhampton, Mass. The two-story sunken living room of this five-bedroom home features floor-to-ceiling windows facing north for a panorama including 90 miles of mature forest. The open-plan house has hardwood floors and beamed ceilings; a gourmet kitchen; game and media rooms; and a principal suite with a walk-in closet and built-ins, a two-sided fireplace dividing bedroom and bathroom, and a deck with a hot tub. On the 58-acre property are an in-ground pool and a barn, paddock, and riding ring. $2,850,000. George Cain, William Pitt/Sotheby's International Realty, (917) 861-3855
