

This week: Homes built in the 1920s

1 ◀ Redding, Conn. Stormfield, Mark Twain's Tuscan-style villa, was rebuilt in 1925 after a fire. The four-bedroom house features a living room with hand-painted coffered ceiling, a foyer with molded ceilings, a library, and an open modern kitchen with island. The 28.5-acre property includes the original terraces, stone walls and pillars, and formal gardens, a gunite pool, and a two-bedroom caretaker's home above the three-car garage. $3,900,000. Laura Freed Ancona, William Pitt/Sotheby's International Realty, (203) 733-7053

2 ▶ Saddle River, N.J. This six-bedroom Tudor dates to 1927. The house retains the original mahogany floors, vintage bathroom tile, French windows, porte cochere, and turret with iron-work spiral staircase; modern additions include a greenhouse room with spa and sauna in the main suite, which also has a fireplace and dressing room. On the 4.7-acre wooded property are lawns, gardens, a stone patio with pool, and a horse barn, paddock, and riding ring. $2,890,000. Janine Fraser, Coldwell Banker Realty, (201) 286-8596

3 ▶ Detroit
Business mogul Charles Van Dusen was the original owner of this 1922 Gothic Revival. The seven-bedroom house features the original slate roof, receiving hall with Pewabic tile, four fireplaces, carved mahogany panels, decorative plaster, and vintage high-fidelity sound system built into custom cabinets, plus an enclosed porch, a billiard room, and a kitchen with walk-in pantry. The 1-acre lot includes a two-bedroom apartment above a four-car garage. $1,590,000. Austin Black II, City Living Detroit, (313) 550-2307
